

CREATIVE WRITING READING SERIES

Annual Faculty Reading

Adam Sol

Adam Sol is the author of four books of poetry, most recently Complicity (M&S 2014). His first book of essays, How a Poem Moves, will be published in 2019.

Leigh Nash

Leigh Nash is the publisher of Invisible Publishing. She currently serves as chair for eBOUND Canada and on the Association of Canadian Publishers board of directors. She received a BA in Creative Writing and Communications Studies from York University, and an MFA in Creative Writing from the University of Guelph. She is the author of several chapbooks and the poetry collection Goodbye, Ukulele, published by Mansfield Press.

Andy Weaver

Andy Weaver has published three books of poetry, most recently _this_ (Chaudiere, 2015). He is currently writing a book-length poem theorizing love; the first part will soon be published by Gap Riot Press as the chapbook "Haeceity."

Michael Helm

Michael Helm's four novels, most recently After James, are all national or international prize finalists. His nonfiction includes writings on social justice workers, reading in translation, fiction, poetry, photography, and painting. He's an editor at Brick magazine.

Jennifer Duncan

Jennifer Duncan is the author of two books, Sanctuary & Other Stories and Frontier Spirit: Brave Women of the Klondike, as well as of numerous poems, short stories and book reviews in literary journals and newspapers. She co-designed the original curriculum for the Yukon School of Art and innovated a community-based writing program in Dawson City. She is currently completing her first novel and her PhD in Language, Culture and Teaching, specializing in creative writing pedagogy.

Ray Robertson

Ray Robertson is the author of eight novels and three collections of non-fiction. His work has been translated into several languages. Born and raised in Chatham, Ontario, he lives in Toronto.

Wednesday, October 24, 2018 / 2:00 – 4:00pm
305 Founders College / ALL ARE WELCOME
Light Refreshments will be served