

Department of Politics

Seminar Series

The Department of Politics invites you to

The Hard Right Populist Insurgency: Political Challenges from Budapest to Washington to Toronto

Monday 26 November 2018

2:30 - 4:30 pm

Convention Centre, 2nd Floor, New Student Centre York University

A roundtable featuring

Greg Albo – Politics • Raju Das – Geography

Stefan Kipfer – Environmental Studies

Andrew Jones – Politics • Heather MacRae – Politics

Viviana Patroni – Development Studies

Ethel Tungohan – Politics

We are at one of those historical moments that compel progressives, from socialists to liberals, to undertake a serious calibration of the political forces amassing on the right.

- To what extent are we still seeing a further mutation of neoliberalism in an increasingly authoritarian form?
- What is the far right's social base, organizational strength and range? How far has it penetrated state institutions?
- What kinds of political formations and alliances might emerge to block the rise of the right and begin to offer a social alternative?

See full description below

Join us for Refreshments following the discussion.
Please RSVP by November 19: The Hard Right RSVP