Dr. Salman Hussain obtained his PhD in Cultural Anthropology from The Graduate Center, City University of New York and, until recently, held a research fellowship in the Law and Anthropology Department of the Max Planck Institute for Social Anthropology. He studies legal-political movements in Pakistan and broadly examines the appeals to higher courts, constitutional law and human rights that the new confluence between law and politics has given life to in South Asia. He has taught at the John Jay College of Criminal Justice and Hunter College of the City University of New York and in the Hunter College's Human Rights Program at the Roosevelt House Public Policy Institute.
