

As part of our popular Lunch Time Talk series McLaughlin College Proudly Presents:

The Right to Religious Freedom

A Lecture and Discussion with:

Satvinder Singh Juss

"Through the lens of leading decisions by the European Court of Human Rights, this lecture considers the major questions confronting advanced western democracies with respect to freedom of religion, namely, (i) whether the majority is justified in imposing its religion on non-adherents or in giving it a legal status above that of other religions; (ii) whether the Swiss ban on minarets violates such rights; (iii) whether there is a realistic distinction between "bearing Christian witness and improper proselytism"; (iv) whether individuals should be forced to choose between their religious beliefs and employment, education and other opportunities; and (v) whether the right line has been drawn with regard to female Muslim dress (headscarf vs. cloak vs. face covering) in education and employment."

SATVINDER SINGH JUSS Ph.D (Cantab) FRSA, is a Professor of Law at King's College London, UK and a Barrister-at-Law of Gray's Inn, London, UK. He has published widely on the subjects of migration and human rights law.
